

Anyone
can get mpox

Outfox MPOX

Vaccinations now available

Mpox is a contagious viral infection that spreads primarily through close contact such as sex.

Anyone can get the virus. However, sexually active gay, bisexual and other men who have sex with men, non-binary and trans people are at highest risk.

Symptoms can include a rash, fever, chills, headache and muscle aches. The virus is rarely life threatening but it can be painful, with symptoms lasting for several weeks.

Two doses are required for maximum protection against mpox. There are vaccination sites throughout Melbourne that offer both first and second doses.

Outfox mpox and get your vaccination today.

Free vaccinations without a Medicare card are available

Scan to find your nearest vaccination site.

Anyone
can get mpox

Outfox MPOX

Vaccinations now available

Mpox is a contagious viral infection that spreads primarily through close contact such as sex.

Anyone can get the virus. However, sexually active gay, bisexual and other men who have sex with men, non-binary and trans people are at highest risk.

Symptoms can include a rash, fever, chills, headache and muscle aches. The virus is rarely life threatening but it can be painful, with symptoms lasting for several weeks.

Two doses are required for maximum protection against mpox. There are vaccination sites throughout Melbourne that offer both first and second doses.

Outfox mpox and get your vaccination today.

Free vaccinations without a Medicare card are available

Scan to find your nearest vaccination site.

